It is the intention of Secretary Garfield to repeat the recommendation to Congress that the leasing system be adopted both for coal and grazing lands. It is pointed out this system is pursued by several states, notably Wyoming, Utah and Colorado, with respect to State public lands, and he saw no reason for the opposition of coal cattle and sheep men to its adoption by the Federal Government.

"Through leasing." he said, "it would be possible to regulate coal mining, for example—that is, to require the removal of all coal. It is proposed also to aim at the prevention of monopolies through the prohibition of private interests from controlling large areas of land. I believe there should be an increase in acreage. The law now permits an individual to take up 160 acres and a corporation 320 acres. This is not sufficient in view of the amount of work and expense involved." "What is the extent of our coal supply?" the Secretary was asked. "There is a limited area," he responded "If the development and use of coal should increase during the next ten years in the same ratio as during the last twenty years the end of our fuel supply wouldn't be many years away. The best information we have fixes from 50 to 100 years as the length of time which the known and in the same ratio.

"What about forest reserves?" he was asked.

"I went into a number of forest reserves and found conditions good. The sentiment of the people is all in favor of these reserves, and cattle and sheepmen who were opposed to them on the ground of the limitations of the grazing land now say their creation was the best thing that has been done.

"The result has been to increase pas ture and to give opportunity to little as well as big men and not to overgraze the range. I have met lumbermen who as well as big men and not to overgraze the range. I have met lumbermen who expressed themselves as hostile to the forest reserve policy, these men saying frankly that they could no longer secure cheap lumber. Nevertheless they recognize that the policy is right. I believe the leasing system adopted for forest reserves is excellent and it is intended to urge Congress to author-ize its application also to the range. "The State of Wyoming leases its

"The State of Wyoming leases its grazing lands and cattlemen approve of it. They do not, however, approve of such action by the general government. I cannot follow such reasoning. Of course this is true: The form of the lease must be in accordance with special needs of the locality. For instance, in some places the lease should be based upon the number of head of cattle or sheep to each acre. In others the lease should specify the area of the land granted. But if you do not lease, the hig fellow inevitably will drive the little fellow out of business."

Mr. Garfield was especially enthusiover the condition of the irrigathe treasury "Of course there are many people who would like these lands given to them, and when the time comes for them to refund the money expended they will endeavor to evade the pay-ment. I shall certainly oppose any-thing of the kind and shall follow the line laid down of requiring equal pay ments spread over a ten year period.

'The experience of private irrigation companies shows if a person makes the first payment the fact he has a stake causes him to stick to the work of cultivation in spite of the hardships and difficulties he suffers. For this reason it seems to me advisable to insist upon the payments."

There is reason to believe that during his trip Secretary Garfield did a great deal of missionary work in beliaff of the candidacy of Secretary Tait for the Presidency.

after having had some trouble with his family.

When Haines began paying attention to the beautiful Miss Von Hedemann, her mother objected, not only on account of the age of her daughter, but also because she wanted to take her abroad and make a match for her with some titled foreigner.

This morning Alma was given permission to attend a Sunday school picnic at Rockport. She sent a telegram later from Youngstown saying that she and Haines had been married. Mrs. Von Hedemann says she will have the marriage annulled.
